

"She is well educated, well qualified and bright." Police Law, Chambers UK 2017

"She has an excellent grasp of employment law and is an effective advocate."
Chambers UK 2015

Beatrice is described by solicitors as providing "extremely clear advice" and as
"a calm and effective advocate" Chambers UK 2014

Background:

Beatrice's first degree was in History & English at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. She successfully completed a second degree, in law at Oxford University, took the Bar Vocational Course at the Inns of Court School of Law and was called to the Bar by Middle Temple in November 2004.

Beatrice accepted tenancy at 5 Essex Court in 2006 and was appointed to the Attorney-General's "C" Panel of Junior Counsel to the Crown in 2009.

Since joining Chambers in October 2006 Beatrice has developed an impressive practice in the areas of Police law and Public Law. Her work also includes public inquiries and inquests.

She is a versatile and experienced advocate who appears in the County Court, the First Tier Tribunal (Tax Chamber), the Employment Tribunal, Coroners Courts, the High Court and the Court of Appeal.

Police Law:

Beatrice represents and advises Chief Constables, police authorities and the Independent Police Complaints Commission in public law claims, malfeasance claims (wrongful arrest, assault, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution and misfeasance), inquests and employment claims.

She also provides advice on policy and operational issues. Beatrice has a particular interest in issues concerned with mental health and policing, including police powers of detention under s136 MHA 1983, police powers of entry under s135 MHA 1983, assessments on private premises without warrants and removal to place of safety.

Currently instructed by the Chief Constable of South Wales, Beatrice is led by Jeremy Johnson QC in the Lynette White litigation involving sixteen claims brought following the collapse in December 2011, of the UK's biggest trial involving alleged police corruption.

Beatrice is acting for the Chief Constable of West Mercia claims for damages for wrongful arrest, assault and false imprisonment brought by several anti-hunt protestors. She is currently advising the Chief Constable of Avon & Somerset in relation to an overtime claim for over £100,000.

Public Law:

Beatrice's successful public law practice involves her representing and advising on behalf of central government departments, claimants and other public authorities. She has experience in prisons, immigration and asylum, human rights, criminal injuries compensation, freedom of information, and data protection law. She is recognised for her pragmatic approach and her attention to detail.

Beatrice is currently instructed on behalf of the Home Secretary and led by Jeremy Johnson QC, in a number of claims. These are brought in the High Court by asylum seekers seeking damages for alleged infringements of their rights under Article 8 ECHR, resulting from maladministration and delay in the granting of their asylum applications.

She is acting for the Home Secretary in litigation brought by asylum seekers who formed part of the "legacy" cases processed by the Case Resolution Directorate and acting for the Home Secretary in various claims for false imprisonment within an immigration context.

Additionally Beatrice is acting for the Home Secretary in several judicial review challenges involving visas refused under the "points based system".

Inquests:

Beatrice is regularly instructed by the police and the prison service to represent them at inquests where the deceased has died in custody. She is experienced at dealing with sensitive inquests involving the application of Article 2.

Her inquest work includes instruction for an inquest into the death of an 18 year old following a police pursuit, an inquest into the death of a person suffering from mental illness whilst in police detention, and an inquest investigating the suicide in prison of a remand prisoner.

Costs:

Beatrice has an interest in costs litigation and has been instructed in a number of costs only claims.

Lectures:

Beatrice provides CPD lectures to solicitors on all aspects of her practice, and offers training in judicial review practice and mental health and policing. Recently she has lectured on the power of arrest, harassment at work, whistleblowing, representing witnesses at public inquiries, defending judicial reviews – practice and procedure, judicial review – drafting summary grounds in police judicial reviews.
